Dear Zion Presbyterian Church family members,

It is commonly considered that the suffering that human beings experience in their life should be solved “here and now.” Sadly, many Christians live in the same frame with anxiety and worry when they go through suffering. After saving us through Jesus’ cross and resurrection, our Father God allows us the eternal life, confirming that the “down the stretch of suffering” is not “here and now” but “in heaven and then.” In our life which is overlapped with Job’s suffering and worry, we cannot but cry out “here and now.” Moreover, because we live out Christian faith in our life, we meet suffering. In this difficult condition, however, we pray that all our Zion family members could continue to live like the people of God without giving up with the new frame, “in heaven and then,” by relying on Jesus Christ who is in us and became our Savior through His cross!
